GEN. CANBY'S ORDER. - The Richmond State Journal says that Gen. Canby's Order referred to yesterday, "releases the State of Virginia on parole," and trusts "that the State will behave so well while under probation, that there will be no necessity for the military commander, hereafter to issue: "General Order No. 1.-1 hereby resume command of the District of Virginia." (!) Gen. Canby, in this order, after giving the directions, already published, relative to Military Commissioners, prisoners held under sentence of military courts, &c., goes on to say that if a writ of habeas corpus is sued out in the State Courts in relation to any such prisoner, "the officer having him in charge will make a respectful return to the writ, setting forth the fact that the prisoner is held by virtue of the final judgment and sentence of a court of competent jurisdiction, held under the authority of the laws of the U. S. and that the jurisdiction, is exclusively in the caurts of the U.S. The division between U. S. and State jurisdictions is not always distinetly marked, but officers will be guided in their action by the principles laid down by the Supreme Court of the U. S. in the case of Ableman vs. Booth; 21 Howard, p. 506.

At all farts, arsenals, light-houses, custom houses, cometeries, and other public establishments, whether held by original cession or by recent occupation under the laws of the U.S. the jurisdiction will be held to be exclusively in the U.S. until otherwise directed by law or other proper authority.

Directions are given for the safe keeping, and deposit of all poll lists registration lists, at elections held under the authority of the laws of the U. S. in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth. The term of office of all officers of the pro visional government of the State of Virginia, whether holding by original election or appointment under the laws of the State, or by appointment or detail under the laws of the U. S. will expire when their successors elected or appointed under the new Constitution shall

Judge Underwood and Ex-Gov. H A. Wise

In the U. S. Circuit Court at Richmond Wednesday, Judge Underwood rendered his decision in the case of Captain William G. Nelms vs. The Steamer John Spivester. Constitution disqualifies certain persons for of the steamer, sucd the owners in November last fice holding; but Congress may remove their for $10,000 damages, got a verdict for $4,500. and a motion for a new trial being now heard, the court decided to present the plaintiff the from the 1st day of January next succeeding alternative of a new trial or receiving $2,000 instead of $4,500, in acquittance. Ex Governor Wise appeared for the plaintiff.

In the course of the Judge's remarks he gentleman after arrival; the services rendered by him to this gentleman in a political canvass quent marriage, &c. He then adverted to the difficulties into which he tell on account or his anti slavery sentiments. He stated that he had been educated in this belief; that he belonged to the straightest sect of Hamiltonian tederalists; that he was of the school of Penn and Fox that this difference of opinion had not alienated the personal regard of his Virginia friends. He expressed in the most glowing terms has ad miration for the tilents, acquirements and character of Gov. Wise, the teading counsel for the plaintiff. He said that this admiration had been formed years before he beeims per sonally acquainted with him, and with a ful knowledge of his strong proslavery opinions that he attributed the difference in their opinions on this subject entirely to their different educations and associations; that since Mr. Wise had commenced practicing in his court he had always treated him with the utmes kindness and courtesy, and that their relations were most agreeable; that the Governor, in the argument of the case, had insisted, in the most eloquent way, that the detendant should be subjected to punitory damages for their negligence as common carriers by which the plaintiff had sustained his jury; that he did not think the case one for such damages as the uegi genee proved was slight; but that he neelected to charge the jury to this effect, although bot specially asked to give such instruction, and that he thought that the jury, in consequence of this omission, and persuaded by General Wise's elequence, had given an excessive verdict. For this reason he should decide to put the plaintiff under a rule to abate his damages, and if he refused that he would grant a new trial. At this point Goy. Wise arose and stated to the court that his hearing was imperfect, and that he had in this way failed to catch several sentences of the judge's opinion. He had heard the word slavery used. He asked what in God's name slavery had to do with the question of a common carrier's liabilty? We had suffered enough, in all conscience, already from this teterrima causa belli. For one, he acepted the fact of its overthrow, and was willing to trust, in good faith upon the new status of affairs. He did not question the honesty of his honor's sentiments on the subject. His own though, were very different on the justitution as established, although not, perhaps, so much ordinances in conflict with the provisions of the so on the question of the abstract right. But this difference of opinion had been fatally and finally ended. Negroes had become free citizens, and he was willing they should remain so. But the great question now was whether millions of white men should remain managed

In the debate on commercial treaties, in the French Corps Legislatif yesterday, the opposition was violent, and there were some stormy seenes, but the Government developed unexpeeted strength. M. Ollivier made the closing speech. He created a sensation by announcing that the Cabinet would support the existing treaties, but they were in favor of the freest discussion, for it was their purpose to afford equal protection to all. He added that the Ministers desired to conduct the Government sustained by a majority of the Chambers, which was the real expression of the will of the nation. That the majority was not an ancient group, but a part of this Assembly, sustaining the policy of the Cabinet, not because it was an accomplished fact, but with the firm intention of maintaining the union. He would say, not in a boastful spirit, but with modesty and dignity, that the Government would accept the aid o tection of any. The Minister's speech was reseived with cheers, and the Government was sustained by a vote of 201 against 32.
